THE KALEIDOSCOPE

1920-1921

vol. 27 number 27

FOREWORD

AN undergraduate was once heard to say that "an annual was only a memory book." The Editors deem this one of the greatest compliments ever paid to the Kaleidoscope. It sets forth in a few words the purpose of this volume. That is, to provide every student, at the cost of much time and labor on the part of the Staff, with a glorified memory book such as no one student could produce.

The Editors wish to take this opportunity of expressing their appreciation of the invaluable aid of: Mr. T. K. Menefee, Mr. J. R. Smith, Mr. Roy Moose, The White Studios, and the Hammersmith-Kortmeyer Co., without which the production of this volume of the Kaleidoscope would have been impossible.

Dedication

President Freshman Class. President Sohomore Class. Manager Baseball. Y. M. C. A. Cabinet. Kaleidoscope Staff. Field Day Marshal. Manager Adams House. Student University of Grenoble, France. Chief Marshal Field Day for High Schools. Magazine Staff. Ass't Business Manager and Ass't Editor Tiger Staff. Intermediate Junior Orator. Presenter of Medals for Union Literary Society, Finals '20. Inter-Collegiate Debate with Guilford College. Inter-society Debater. Varsity Football '16-'19-'20. Captain Football '20. President Monogram Club. Manager College Book Store. Student Council. German Club. Comity Club.

Cary is so well known to Hampden-Sidney men and other people that the usual brand of "senior write-up" is more or less superfluous. When a man is already known to everybody what is the use of introducing him? P. C. is greatly blessed in that he possesses the ability to forget his work while at play, and his play while at work. This quality makes him the most consistently cheerful man on the campus, and, at the same time one of the hardest workers. The latter fact is made evident when one remembers that after spending over two years in the army, he returned to college and kept at work until he now stands on the threshold of graduation.

His athletic ability is amply demonstrated by the fact that he has played on three championship football teams, having been captain of last year's great "comeback" team. The sensational development of the team was in no small degree due to his efforts.

In addition Cary has time and again demonstrated his literary and forensic ability by his service on the Magazine and Tiger staffs, and as an orator and Inter-Collegiate debater.

In short, we are certain that Cary will succeed in whatever he undertakes.

WALTER ELLIS AYLOR

Culpepper. Va. Philanthropic

President Class '17. Varsity Football Team '15-'16-'17. Captain Football Team '18. Varsity Baseball Team '17-'18-'19. Captain Varsity Baseball Team '18 and '21. Scrub Basketball Team '17-'18-'19-'21. Comity and German Clubs. Student Council. Sec'y-Treas. Athletic Association '18-'19. President Student Body '20-'21.

"Red," "Peck," "Old Man;" call him what you will, it all means the same thing to Hampden-Sidney folks, the big, red-headed, always cheery, fellow who has endeared himself to us all and won for himself a high niche in the "Hill's" Hall of Fame.

Like so many college men, he left school before the end of his junior year to enlist in the army. He soon received his commission as a second Lieutenant of Field Artillery. As soon as he was discharged he was back at H.-S. The following year he was again compelled to be out of college. This time he taught for one session at the McCallie School. One sees that he has had to overcome many difficulties in the pursuit of a college education. That he has succeeded is abundant proof of the sterling caliber of the man.

In addition, he is an all-round athlete, a fine singer and musician, a ladies' man. and one of the most popular men in college. We see Peck leave with a tear for the good old days, but with a cheer for the future that must await such a man.

JOHN BROOKE BITTINGER, Jr.

Gerrardstown, W. Va.

Baseball Squad. Student at Carson-Newman College '17-'20.

Bittinger comes to us from Carson-Newman College, where he spent the first three years of his college career. However, he finally decided to heed the call of the college of his forefathers and this fall found him enrolled in the ranks of '21.

Despite his short stay here, he has managed already to endear himself to many of us. He is quiet and steady, with a ready good humor; the dependable type who make up the backbone of any student body.

His scholastic ability is well attested by the fact that he could change colleges and not fall back a bit in his classes. Although not a shark, it is a sly professor who catches him unprepared.

A letter man in baseball at Carson-Newman, John promises to give some one a hard tussle for second base. On the diamond, as elsewhere, he exhibits those same qualities of steadiness, dependability and good judgment.

In a way, the college world is simply a small model of the world of affairs. If the regard and respect of classmates and fellow-students is any indication of worth, John stands high. Hampden-Sidney feels, therefore, little fear for the future position of this one of her sons, for she knows that when he goes she is releasing to the world a man, foursquare.

RUFUS BRITTAIN

ΠΚΑ, Σ, Φ, 7½, 13, T.M.T., ΧΒΦ

Tazewell, Va. Union

Varsity Basketball 1917-'18-'19-'20-'21. Captain Basketball 1919-'20-'21. Football Squad 1918-'19. Varsity Football 1920-'21. Student Council 1918-'19-'20-'21. Delegate to Plattsburg 1919. German Club 1917-'18-'19-'20-'21.

"Brit," Rufus, or "Jack," it didn't make much difference, he answered to them all. Carefree, smiling, bright in his classes when he took half a notion to be, not so strong for the ladies, though he could kid them along with the next one and had a decided preference for one of these Tazewell ladies at R. M. W. C.. a friend of every one was Brit.

A product of the Great Southwest, and very proud of it is he, and we predict that it won't be many years before the Great Southwest will be prond of it, too. His popularity can be readily seen from the above long list of organizations to which he belongs. Besides these honors above he has held many offices in his class which he is either too modest or indifferent to mention.

As captain of the basketball team for three successive years we find Brit the possessor of an honor seldom bestowed on a college man by his fellows. He also made his letters, playing a wonderful game at forward, on that championship team of four years ago. Brit's athletic ability is not confined to basketball only, for he also played on Coach Roundy's championship football team and was mentioned for a position on the all-star E. V. I. A. A. His speed has also won him note in track events.

It is without the least fear of exaggeration that we say that Brit will be among the most missed men leaving Hampden-Sidney this year. He has won his way into all of our hearts and it won't be easy to forget him. Brit talks of becoming a mining engineer; he is one of the few that have tackled Math. and Physics IV, and there is not much doubt but that he will be successful if he undertakes engineering for his life's work.

WARNER LEWIS FLEMING

KΣ. ΣΨ. 7½. Φ. "13." H. S.

Richmond, Va. Philanthropic

President Freshman Class (1st Term) 1917. Varsity Football Squad '17-'18. Varsity Football Team 1919-'20. Varsity Basketball Team 1919-'20. Monogram Club 1919-'20. Comity Club 1918-'19-'20. Kaleidoscope Staff 1920-'21. Manager Tiger Novelty Orchestra 1920-'21. Historian Senior Class 1920-'21.

Four long years ago when conditions were much different a quiet and unassuming freshman came into our midst. However, it wasn't long before everyone on the "Hill" knew Lewis either by sight or name; everyone was talking of that little quarterback who didn't care how big they came. Hailing from the Richmond Academy, "Lukey" came to us with qualities that soon won our friendship. As a sign of this he was elected as the first president of the class of nineteen twenty-one.

Lukey is one of that type that sets their mind on some object and then works until it is attained. He came here with two purposes in view: to get a degree and to make a name for himself as an athlete. As a football player Lewis hasn't missed a trip since he entered College, making his letters on teams that tied and once won the championship for the E. V. I. A. A. Having no basketball experience at all, Lukey determined that he wanted to make a letter in that branch of sport also. The result is that he has twice done so and was considered this year as about the best player on the team.

As for literary ability, who can touch him when we remember those "A's" he used to pull in Spanish and the way he knew every date in the English History? His ability along this line is also recognized in that he is on the Kaleidoscope staff and a member of the literary fraternity in College.

We can't remember Lukey after he has left these old ivy-clad walls as the bashful, woman-hating freshman of four years ago, but it will be with a tightened throat that those who are left to carry on at Hampden-Sidney read the name of Lewis Fleming among those having graduated in nineteen hundred and twenty-one and remember that cheering smile and good humor which won for him so many friends among both the genders at Hampden-Sidney. Here's wishing you the best in life, Lukey, and may you bring credit to yourself and your old Alma Mater!

HUSIE ATWOOD GLENN

Prospect, Va. Philanthropic

Baseball Squad. Second Passage Baseball Team. President Senior Class.

Heinie was one of us who arrived on the Hill in the fall of seventeen and suffered with the rest of us the hardships and pleasures of our freshman year. The years have rolled up and in place of an humble freshman, we find the dignified President of the Senior Class.

For a while, he was missing from our ranks, when, with many others he left to engage in the great struggle for democracy. That his scholastic standing should have suffered owing to this sacrifice is a reasonable conclusion. That it did not, it is proof of the enterprise of the man, for Heinie, while overseas, attended the University of Toulouse.

The President of our Senior Class is one of our avowed sharks. In the classroom he leaves us all behind. It is really wonderful to hear some of the learned philosophical and economic arguments in which he engages. His knowledge of contemporaneous matters is also far-reaching, and his flow of rhetoric is at times most disconcerting.

Basehall also claims part of Heinie's attention. Right field is his regular position and last year he made all of the trips. This year he promises to show Babe Ruth a thing or two when it comes to clouting the old pill.

To whatever Glenn has put his hand, he has made a success of it, whether in his studies or in campus activities. Consequently we, his fellow classmates, feel little doubt of the success that will attend him when he tackles the larger problems of outside life.

THOMAS JEFFERSON HEADLEE

Farmville, Va. Union

Member Debate Council 1919-'20; 1920-'21. President Debate Council 1920-'21. Sophomore Essayist Medal 1919-'20. Inter-Collegiate Debater, Hampden-Sidney vs. Guilford College, N. C., 1921. Sec'y-Treas. Senior Class 1921. Final Senior Orator 1921.

The fact "Tom" is not "Tommy" is significant. The name "Tom" just suits Headlee; it gives the right impression; he is a serious, sober-minded fellow and conducts himself with dignity at all times. Have you ever seen "Tommy" possessed of such characteristics?

"Tom" is a three-year man. That is, he has traveled the course to a degree in three years, whereas it usually takes four and often more for some of us. This fact proves his ability as a student; he is truly a hard worker; and this, with his earnestness and determination, give an unbeatable combination.

The boy from Farmville has taken an active part in the life of his Literary Society during his college career. He is a speaker and debater of ability and has more than once reflected credit on his society and school by his public debates.

"Tom" is seeking higher education, and that school which gets him for a student is indeed fortunate. "Tom" will measure up and he is one of whom you will hear in years to come.

C. CAMPBELL HUNDLEY
XBΦ

Farmville, Va.

The name of Deacon is familiar to every H. S. student and resident. It has a variety of meanings, but when heard on the campus it always stands for the same thing, "Deacon" Hundley, the boy from Farmville. "Deacon" came to us four short years ago, and since the first day of his freshman year has been hailed as one with a voracious appetite and one to enter into and appreciate a joke. His is an acute and discriminating sense of humor.

If hard, common-sense, seriousness, and steadiness of purpose, patience, and perseverance count for anything in this world, we predict that "Deacon" will carve a niche in the hall of fame which even time will have a hard time to smooth over.

Some people study to pass exams and receive credits; others study because they appreciate the true worth of knowledge and are desirous of better fitting themselves for the struggles of life. "Deacon" is a staunch member of this latter class.

He is a true friend, one to sacrifice much on the Altar of Friendship, and by virtue of this admirable trait he has become endeared to many.

JOHN A. LACY

Meadeville, Va. Philanthropic

Intermediate Marshal, 1918. Auditor Students' Club. Students' Council 1918-'19-'20-'21. Secretary-Treasurer Students' Council 1920-'21. Member Student Volunteer Movement. Delegate to State Student Volunteer Conference. Winner Junior Scholarship 1919-'20. President Ministerial Band of H. S. C. Chairman Mission Study Committee. Triangular Debate with Randolph-Macon and Emory and Henry Colleges.

John came to us four years ago from Cluster Springs Academy, which, unable to get along without him, at once closed its doors. C. S. A. has always been known on the Hill for the quality of the men it turned out, so we naturally expected great things from John, and we have not been disappointed. Far from it, we have been surprised at the wisdom and quiet strength of the man.

John announced his hope of becoming a Minister of the Gospel as soon as he reached college and has stuck to that intention with a steady persistence that not only is a guarantee of success, but also shows the character of the man as no mere words could possibly do.

He has said that he intends to enter the foreign mission field, and by his life since entering Hampden-Sidney, we know that none are better qualified than he for this most difficult and trying work in the Master's service. Japan, John's chosen field, calls for just such a strong Christian and scholarly gentleman as he is.

"Wat" is another of our Eastern Shore products, and, like all the men hailing from the land of potatoes and mosquitoes, he has taken an active part in every phase of college activity. From the class-room to the Normal, he is equally famous for his ability.

Though he is physically the smallest man in the class of '21, Wat's diminutive size has not prevented him from making a name for himself in athletics. He played in the outfield for four seasons on the Varsity, where his speed in the field and on the bases has given him more than local fame. In addition, he is a formidable sprinter and inter-class football player.

He is an orator of note, having represented his literary society on more than one occasion, besides being an invaluable member of the Magazine staff, serving two terms as Alumni Editor.

Wat's ability along other lines is also conspicuous. He is an outstanding member of the Normal and Farmville Clubs in addition to being President of the German Club.

In short, nothing but success can await a man so thoroughly capable along so many lines of endeavor.

Jack is one of those reserved fellows, who attract your attention on first acquaintance. You can't help but see in those eyes of his the will and earnestness which he puts into all of his work. For he is truly a worker, not one to give in, as is shown in his career upon the football field. He stuck four years there, and in the end was one of the best guards of the E. V. I. A. A. So it goes with everything which he tries.

Jack has also been bequeathed by the gods a disposition which has made him very popular and much beloved by the student body, who have shown their appreciation by conferring upon him numerous offices in the difficult organizations here in college. The student body made no mistake in giving them to him, for he has borne them in the quiet, modest manner which is characteristic of Jack.

Jack will be missed by all who have been associated with him, and especially by the freshmen, who entered college without a proper training in Math., for it has been through the untiring efforts of Jack that many have been enabled to begin Math. 1 with a good foundation.

For four years Jack has been a staunch friend to all, and it is with many pangs of regret that we give him up to the professional world.

Although H.-S. has received many gifts from the city of Richmond, she hardly realized what a gem was bequeathed to her in the elongated personage of one F. T. McFaden, Jr., in the fall of '17. Frank was no stranger on the Hill and immediately upon arrival he assumed the responsibilities, which are characteristic of all good "Tiger Freshmen." Although he did not hail from the wild and woolly west, he soon developed into a "Broncho-Buster" for Dutch's Charley-horses which were raised in death valley; but he did not stop here for he became the speed demon of Powhatan County, as can be testified by "Pep" and "Susie" who were fortunate enough to be with him after the Richmond game.

For some time Frank was a student of the Epicurean School, but lately he has abandoned the wine and devotes his time to song and women, preferably the latter. No social function is complete without the smiling face and the hearty laughter of Mac.

As a leader in College activities, McFaden is without a peer, for every organization needs the name of F. T. McFaden, Jr., upon its roster in order to be a success. His literary abilities are shown by the fact that he has been one of the very few men to hold a position on each of the College publications.

As a friend and confidant, Frank is true blue and along with it a one hundred per cent man. To show the appreciation accorded Frank by the students, take a squint at his honors tabulated at the top of this page.

DEWEY NEWTON

Marshal Final Celebration '18-'19. Secretary Freshman Class '18-'19. Treasurer Sophomore Class '19-'20. Censor Philanthropic Literary Society '20-'21. Vice-President Bible Class '20-'21.

Here is another of Hampden-Sidney's sons who has won his degree in three years. Dewey came to the Hill but three years ago, and his first year was a success despite the hardships of S. A. T. C. regime. The last two years have been repetitions of the first, and if he continues to learn in the future as he has learned in the past, Newton will soon be an Encyclopedia of Knowledge.

Dewey is an active man on the campus. He has been an active leader in religious work as well as a booster of class athletics, and his literary ability is also noteworthy. We who know him are happy to see such a man go forth to represent our College, but our happiness is intermingled with regret at his departure.

Dewey is one of those fine fellows who stand forth as straightforward Christian gentlemen in any crowd. He has been greatly interested in the Master's cause during his school life at Hampden-Sidney, and we predict for him a career of great usefulness in the service of his Maker.

A man of noteworthy abilities is J. Elmo Peery. The tallest senior, he has a record well in keeping with his high position in college life. "Mo" came to us but three years ago from the "Wonder Land" of Tazewell. The trials of S. A. T. C. life failed to discourage him, and in three years he has easily averaged over twenty hours per annum.

From that day that "Mo" first entered old Hampden-Sidney's ivy-covered walls he has made his mark and today he is one of the most popular men in school. His acquaintances are his friends; to know him is to love him.

Peery is not only likeable; he is competent as manager of several publications as well as the Championship Football team of 1921. He has amply demonstrated his ability to accomplish things. The varsity men still praise their general manager's arrangements for that memorable Newport News trip.

"Mo" is undoubtedly the most original humorist in college, and some of his wonderful tales of adventure would make the renowned Baron Munchausen blush for shame. His wit has added to the enjoyment of many a pleasant winter evening, but with it all he has never made merry at the expense of others. Peery's optimism is everlasting.

Willing, competent, popular, what more does the world require? "Mo" goes forth a man in every sense of the word, well worthy to uphold the high reputation of his Alma Mater.

Modest, refined and in every sense a gentleman is "Dot," our representative from Petersburg. Entering with the Class of '21, Dot proved himself so capable as a student, that at the end of his Sophomore year he found himself ready to enter the Senior Class the following fall. But wishing to be graduated with the class with whom he had experienced the hardships of Freshman life, he remained at home during what would have been his Junior year, and the fall of 1920 brought him to us again to the great delight of us all.

As a student he has no superior, and his "batting average" in the class-room, especially German, has won for him the admiration of both the students and the faculty.

However, "Tweet" is not totally engrossed in books, for—well, he has the unusual distinction of being the only man on the "Hill" who can draw a pink missive from each afternoon mail.

His quiet and genial air, his ready laugh and generous spirit will be missed when he goes out from us. "Dot" has not told us along what lines he intends to direct his untiring efforts, but knowing him as we do, we can predict for him nothing but success.

This wearer of the Cap and Gown came here in 1917 from Northern W. Va., combining the freshness of his apple growing country with the odors of zinc ointment. However, it soon left him and it was then that we saw the handsome Felix, Felix is a word which means happiness in the Latin, and could easily be stretched to connubial felicity which our friend Welton is soon to enjoy. Rumors say that it will not be long after his graduation before the knot will be tied. Some one whispers a fair nurse of the Capital City.

As a Freshman, Welton was fresh, and so much for his Freshman year; but in his Soph. year he became an orator of no mean ability, and won a string of medals. His Junior and Senior years have continued to shower honors upon him, among which was the presidency of the Y. M. C. A.

He has been engaged in most every activity in College and in all he has taken a conservative part, and has been a wise councillor.

He is a rather serious boy and is a hard worker, but he can play when the time comes to play, and can tell a good joke with the best.

Students like Felix make a good College, and we hate to lose him, but we must give him up to the world now and wish him well on his way. You will succeed, Felix.

In addition to his artistry as a teller of tales about all the ports of the Seven Seas, the "Admiral" is a hard, consistent worker with a wondrous faculty of spending his time on the most important points of each assignment. Though not a letter man, "Pink's" service on the basketball and baseball squads has been invaluable in developing these teams. Even if he did not possess these attributes, "Pink's" fame would still be secure, his endurance (in more ways than can be told) puts him on a high pinnacle in Hampden-Sidney's Hall of Fame, and will take its place as one of the heroic legends of the college world in years to come.

When "Pink" first appeared on the Hill, his dry wit and cheery optimism at once made a hit. Since then, three years of college and two years of the Navy have so mellowed and perfected his line that he is now the peerless conversationalist of Tigerdom.

In short, "Pink" leaves the sacred halls of Alma Mater more than usually well qualified to uphold her standards in the great world without.

History of the Class of '21

THE Class of '21 occupies a very proud position in the history of this institution. It has suffered the vicissitudes and borne the hardships, enjoyed the advantages, and reaped the benefits of that period which has meant more to Hampden-Sidney College than any other period of equal duration. During our short stay, the College and its life has been practically revolutionized.

The past two years have marked the real beginning of the era of awakening and development. For years, Hampden-Sidney had been a denominational college, but had no direct connection with the church. It now came under the control of the Synod of Virginia. Dr. Eggleston, one of the foremost educators of Virginia, and with a long record of successful service behind him, assumed the presidency. The faculty was increased and several new courses added to the curriculum. Scholastic requirements were stiffened. The "automatic mule" administered its first fatal kick and left us, though weakened in numbers, determined upon harder study. Electricity and many other modern conveniences were installed. Cement walks were laid. Dr. Gammon procured for us adequate facilities for a real Y. M. C. A. The infirmary and the seminary were put in order and opened again. The campus was resurveyel and plans laid for new buildings. Finally the million dollar campaign that has been recently launched, promises to put Hampden-Sidney on the map.

Consequently, the Senior Class views with pride its connection with Hampden-Sidney College at this vital time.

It is only natural that in this time of stress, some of the pilgrimage with us will be missing when the final roll is called. The saddest part of the history of our class lies in that list of the names of its members after which must be written the symbol ex '21. Others, however, have come to fill these vacant places. Some have returned from the army, some have risen from the lower classes, but all have caught the old spirit and have been welded into one homogeneous whole by the fires of friend and fellowship.

The athletic record of Hampden-Sidney during our stay in College is worthy of note. In the last four years we have not lost a football championship. Two championships were won, a third tied, and the fourth was not awarded owing to the S. A. T. C. For the past three years the class of '21 has furnished the captains for all three teams, football, basketball and baseball. Furthermore, Adams, Aylor, Brittain, Fleming and Lyle have represented us in football, Brittain and Fleming played on the varsity quint, the former having been captain for three years; on the diamond, Aylor, Lacy and Bittinger have upheld our honor.

Let one not imagine, however, that we have neglected the scholastic for the athletic side of college life, for we all study more or less. We have to. However, Heinie Glenn and Doc Thweatt are openly avowed sharks. Wat Lacy, Welton and Headlee are orators of note and ability, while the literary ability of Frank McFaden who left us at Christmas, due to ill health, is attested by a position on all three college publications, Magazine, Tiger and Kaleidoscope, of which latter he was editor-in-chief. Deacon Hundley is our best known Mexican athlete. (If one happens to be passing the college shop and sees a group standing around with mouths open in wonder, it is a reasonable guess that Adams and Whaley of the army and navy Club are beguiling the happy hours in the great national pastime.

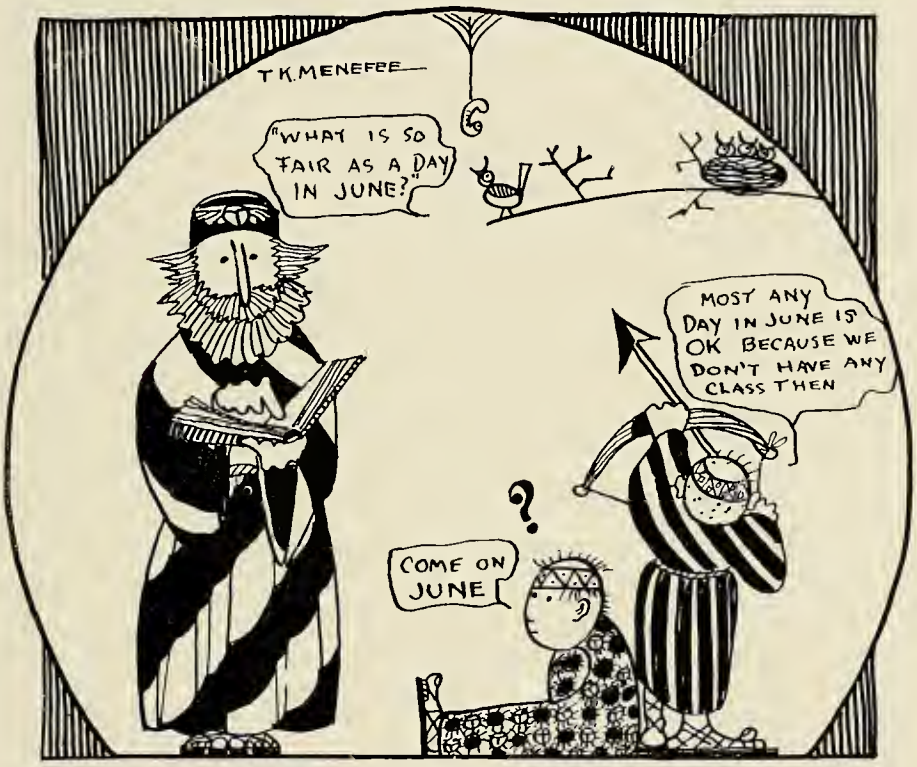

Our faces are now turned toward the great outside world and we shall soon be engaged in the struggle for which we have been preparing during these years. Amidst the bustle and toil of life, however, there are some quiet moments of reflection, and in these our memories will ever turn toward the "hill." Here we have spent the happiest part of our life. And here let us hope, in the future years the class of '21 may look forward to frequent and joyous reunions.

Junior Class History

How like a bird, that in the sunset glow,
Swift sailing thru the dusk goes winging home,
Flies on old time, on pinions swift and sure,
Towards that eternal sunset in the west.
Tho men may meet and love, still must they part,
The hand of fate eternal, pointing on,
Bids paths diverge, that long have run as one.
And so must we, who three long years have lived
Beneath the shade of Hampden-Sidney's oaks,
Soon venture forth to play the part of men
Along the grim and crooked path of life.
The bugles shrill did sound the call of war,
When first we came as Freshmen to the Hill,
And much we worked, and little studied then,
For war sets free the heart from other cares.
Who can forget old Walker, ivory domed,
Or Russel, and his blushing smiling niece—
Can you forget our friend Fitzhugh Lee Smith?
How well he could command a squad of men!
And pleasant are the memories that we hold
Of Sergeant Ball, so gentle in command!
Then change the scene! The times of war are done,
And paddles rattle in the dead of night.
Forever graven on our memories are
The things that happened on old 4th that night.
And them as Soph'mores, how we strutted round
Advising Freshmen what 'twere best to do.
Oh, how we dumped the beds and rang the bell
And made the Freshmen tell the iron pipe
That sits upon the gas tank how they loved
Its fairy eyes and gleaming golden hair!
And then as Juniors we have played our part,
And taken jobs, as worthy Juniors should.

As staff men, manager, or on the team,
That we might help to keep alive the fame
Of our old Alma Mater. Oh, how soon,
As Seniors we will strut in cap and gown,
As we do bid a long farewell to this
Our home for oh, how many happy days!
Ah, happy times! They ne'er can come again,
For, unsubstantial as a fleeting dream
They've faded e'er we've realized that they've gone!
And yet unlike a dream, they've left a mark
Indelible, upon our hearts and souls,
And tho they're almost past, these college days
Will keep alive sweet memories in our hearts
And cast a light along life's pathway dim.
Here's to you, then, old Class of '22!
Here's to the men whose names your roll enshrines!
And faithful may they ever be to God,
And to their country, and the true ideal!

Sophomore Class History

OUR class is indeed fortunate in many respects. We began our college career after the S. A. T. C. had passed into history, but were just in time to help remedy the disorganizing and demoralizing effects of it. Ours is the class of opportunity. We were further aided by entering college and beginning our new life along with the new executive administration, not having the vacillating regime of acting presidents, etc., to labor under. And so thus in settled conditions we settled down to make a mark for ourselves. Everything was going nicely, in fact, very nicely, when lo, the "antomatic mule" became obstreperous and kicked furiously, stunning some and knocking some completely out. However, those remaining soon recovered from said shock, and from the grief of losing their companions, and took up their work with renewed vigor. The days slipped rapidly by, winter merged into spring, and before we knew it examinations and finals were upon us.

During this first year we did ourselves proud in almost every branch of college activities. Who can ever forget Binford's eight first grades? In football Ben Smith and Bill Day represented us, Ben Smith starring for the school. In basketball John Luke made his letter, and again in baseball Ben Smith, Bill Day and Kilmon won laurels for Hampden-Sidney and so brought glory upon our class. We also have a various assortment of adepts at other arts. A more perfect ladies' man could not be wished for than "Sue" Lacy, nor could a more ingenious female be found than "Clarisse" Hardwicke, who succeeded in vamping the entire freshman class into the fourth passage taking in. Remember the nights when the sophomores with superfluous care and attention used to attempt to teach us the H. S. songs and to train us to be traditional Hampden-Sidney men? And who can forget how we imperilled our persons by hoisting a freshman flag on the gas tank? These were great days, but, like all enjoyable things, had to end.

When college opened last fall the larger part of our class re-assembled in the classic halls of old Hampden-Sidney, not yet sophisticated, but less green. We undertook faithfully to perform our duty towards our new friends, the freshmen, and to whip them into shape. We've conducted numerous song services on the gas tank and have held more than one "soiree de swat." Said automatic mule kicked again this year, but with much less force, and no fatalities occurred in our class. However, for a number of reasons our ranks are becoming depleted, and it is with great regret that we have our fellow classmen leave us.

This, our sophomore year, is a memorable one in football. Out of almost entirely raw material, which V. M. I. walloped at the beginning of the season, our coach developed a team which won the E. V. I. A. A. championship. The class of '23 is proud to state that seven of the first squad men were from among its ranks. We were also creditably represented on the season's basketball team, and now since baseball season has opened quite a number of our men are doing well on the diamond. And so our class has taken advantage, at least to some extent, of the opportunities presented here at college. But shall we not spur ourselves on to greater achievements and more noble victories, both physical, mental and spiritual during the last two years of our college career?

Freshman Class History

AS a general thing the history of any freshman class is both a difficult and an easy thing to write. Difficult in that there is but one year in which the historian can seek for material. Easy in that the history of the average freshman class is not eventful enough to fill up many pages of a college annual.

The class of 1924 began its life with one notable distinction. It was the largest freshman class to ever enter Hampden-Sidney. From Maine to Mississippi the new men came, some green, some consciously blasé, but all determined to become loyal sons of H.-S. C. We started out with this very noble intention. We were encouraged to preserve it by the Sophomores. Under their gentle persuasion we had learned our College songs and yells within two weeks after arrival. Aided by the benign influence of the upper classmen we managed to keep a group of spectators at Death Valley every afternoon during football season and even to indulge in a chance game of leap frog as a side attraction.

The Class of '24 has never found itself slighted by the lack of attention from the upper classmen. Several notable social events were held in our honor. The most successful of these were the first night on the "Tank," "Second Passage," the midnight assembly and subsequent race to Farmville, and "Fourth Passage." These little honors and attentions did much to break the ice for the Freshmen and make them feel a part of the College.

This year's Freshman Class has been especially prominent in athletics. Attaya and E. Sager were football letter men. Then, too, at least one third of the entire squad was composed of Freshmen. In basketball the Freshmen furnished L. Sager, Johnson and Attaya, who were valuable additions to the Varsity. Several Freshmen bid fair to earn a place on this year's baseball team. The first year men were not contented to limit their support to the Varsity. Freshmen football, basketball, and baseball teams were organized, all three teams winning a good percentage of their games.

In spite of its activity in athletics the Freshmen Class is not without its brilliant students, literary geniuses, and oratorical talent. Bittinger and Roberts are the acknowledged sharks of the class. Poage is the Freshman bright light of the Philanthropic Literary Society. The Freshman Latin 1 Class became famous when Dr. Whiting handed out two A's and eight B's at the end of one month.

The Class of '24 showed its determined spirit when it held its first meeting in spite of the greatest diffieulties. Next year the Freshmen will lose a few men. The majority who will return will enter Hampden-Sidney next fall with the same spirit of determination. This spirit will be directed toward the development of Hampden-Sidney whieh can be accomplished only by the eooperaton of all her loyal sons.

Capt. Adams

WHEN football practice began on the fifteenth day of September, the men got their first glimpse of Coach Roundy, our new director of athletics. To his efforts the eventual success of this year's football team may, in large part, be ascribed. Coach Roundy came to us practically unknown, took new and inexperienced players, and by instilling into them his own fighting spirit changed a hopelessly defeated team into a bunch of fighters. His knowledge of the game and his ability to impart his knowledge were equally great.

Capt.-Elect Sands

Fifty candidates reported on Venable Field the first evening and work began. Capt. Adams, Day, Smith, Sands, and Fleming, letter men from last year, served as a nucleus around which to build. No time was wasted in preliminaries. The backfield worked hard, the line harder.

Fleming

After two weeks of this gruelling work, we faced our first opponents in V. P. I. On a wet field which slowed up play to a considerable extent, Tech. triumphed 36 to 0. Then came the game with V. M. I. No Hampden-Sidney Team has ever suffered a more crushing defeat than that administered us by the "Flying Squadron" by the score of 136 to 0. The less said about this game the better. Our inexperienced line cracked and our backfield went to pieces, before the onslaught of V. M. I.'s veteran eleven. A sad affair after the 3 to 0 battle of last year!

At this point our fortune was at its lowest ebb. For several days the intensest gloom prevailed, but finally the old spirit asserted itself. The addition of Ben Smith and Attaya strengthened the backfield immensely. Changes were made in the line, Coach Roundy never let up for a minute. It was drive, drive, drive.

The result of this work was seen in our next game. After our opponents had scored the first touchdown we came back and defeated the L. A. C. 21 to 7. Our game with Richmond College in Richmond witnessed our last defeat of the season. A little hard luck and two penalties aggregating about one hundred yards costing us two touchdowns.

In our first championship game the Tiger outfit hit the stride which they kept up for the rest of the year. Lynchburg College proved an easy victim, Hampden-Sidney keeping the ball in the enemy's territory all of the time after the first five minutes of play. Our game with Randolph-Macon resulted in another victory for the garnet and gray. Ben Smith ran at will through Randolph-Macon's line and around their ends. We had advanced one more step towards the E. V. I. A. championship.

We staged our next conflict in old Death Valley. Roanoke College fought well and the outcome hung in doubt until the last minute. Hampden-Sidney scored first when Brittain received a forward pass and ran for a touchdown. Roanoke with her heavier line came back and carried the ball across on straight football. The deciding score came when Captain Adams recovered a fumble and ran almost to the goal line when Smith carried the ball over for the score.

A new departure was made when we played Guilford in Danville. We succeeded in defeating them in a game that was very poorly played on both sides. Fumbles were costly to both sides and the only redeeming features of the game were Brittain's receiving of a forward pass and Day's drop kick.

Day

Following the Guilford game every preparation was made for our final contest with William and Mary on Thanksgiving.

Hagan

A book might be written on that forty-eight-minute struggle, but a meager account must suffice. William and Mary's line outweighed us heavily, but our's was better. The deciding factor proved to be the old Tiger fight and determination to win.

The first half was scoreless with the ball in mid-field most of the time. Then, at the beginning of the first half William and Mary recovered a fumble and ran to the two-yard line. In three plays they drove the ball across and goal was kicked from touchdown.

Things looked bad for a Tiger victory, but the team never gave up. Hampden-Sidney received the ball and began a march up the field. Ben Smith circled the ends time and again for substantial gains and the Tiger's finally scored the touchdown that tied things up. Once more the ball hovered in mid-field and, with five minutes more of play, it looked like a tie. Then William and Mary fumbled and Brittain recovering the ball, raced for a touchdown. The game ended shortly after and Hampden-Sidney had won another championship.

Fuqua

The 1920 season should be an inspiration to those hereafter who support the name of Hampden-Sidney, on the athletic field. From well-nigh hopeless defeat the Tiger team fought its way to a final victory. Against heavier and more experienced teams, Hampden-Sidney won what may be the last cup awarded by the old E. V. I. A. A.

Basketball Season 1921

IN basketball we were handicapped this year by green material. The past season has practically served for apprenticeship. Next year should procure results. Though we did not succeed in winning many games, no team ran up a very large score on us. The men fought gamely until the last whistle, but somehow we didn't seem to be able to find the basket at the critical time. Our defense was good and our pass work was fair, but we didn't have a single man who could ring them up regularly. Furthermore, right in midseason, when team work was developing, sickness threw three regulars out of the line-up.

Immediately after the holidays, practice began. Strenuous work commenced at once in preparation for our first game. Then we met the strong Lynchburg Elks on our home floor. Though we were defeated, the game was sharply contested throughout. The following week we left on our first trip, playing the Elks again and the University of Virginia, to both of whom we lost. Our next trip, on which we played V. P. I., Roanoke College and Roanoke Y. M. C. A., was equally unsuccessful.

The weeks of gruelling practice finally bore fruit in our next game. The Union Theological Seminary was defeated in the last five minutes of play. The Elon College game which we lost by one point after an extra period, was one of the best games of basketball ever staged in the H. Tucker Graham Gymnasium.

Then an epidemic of colds and flu laid up four first-string men. Things looked pretty blue, and Lynchburg College arrived expecting an easy victory. The American Legion of Petersburg next fell an easy victim in the game in which we rolled up our largest score.

However, the last of the season almost made up for all our previous defeats. Randolph-Macon, completely outplayed in every department of the game, went down to defeat 13 to 4.

At the close of the season, letters were given to Capt. Brittain, Mgr. Hughes, Fleming, Stoltz, Montgomery, Sager, Johnson, and Smith.

Baseball Prospectus

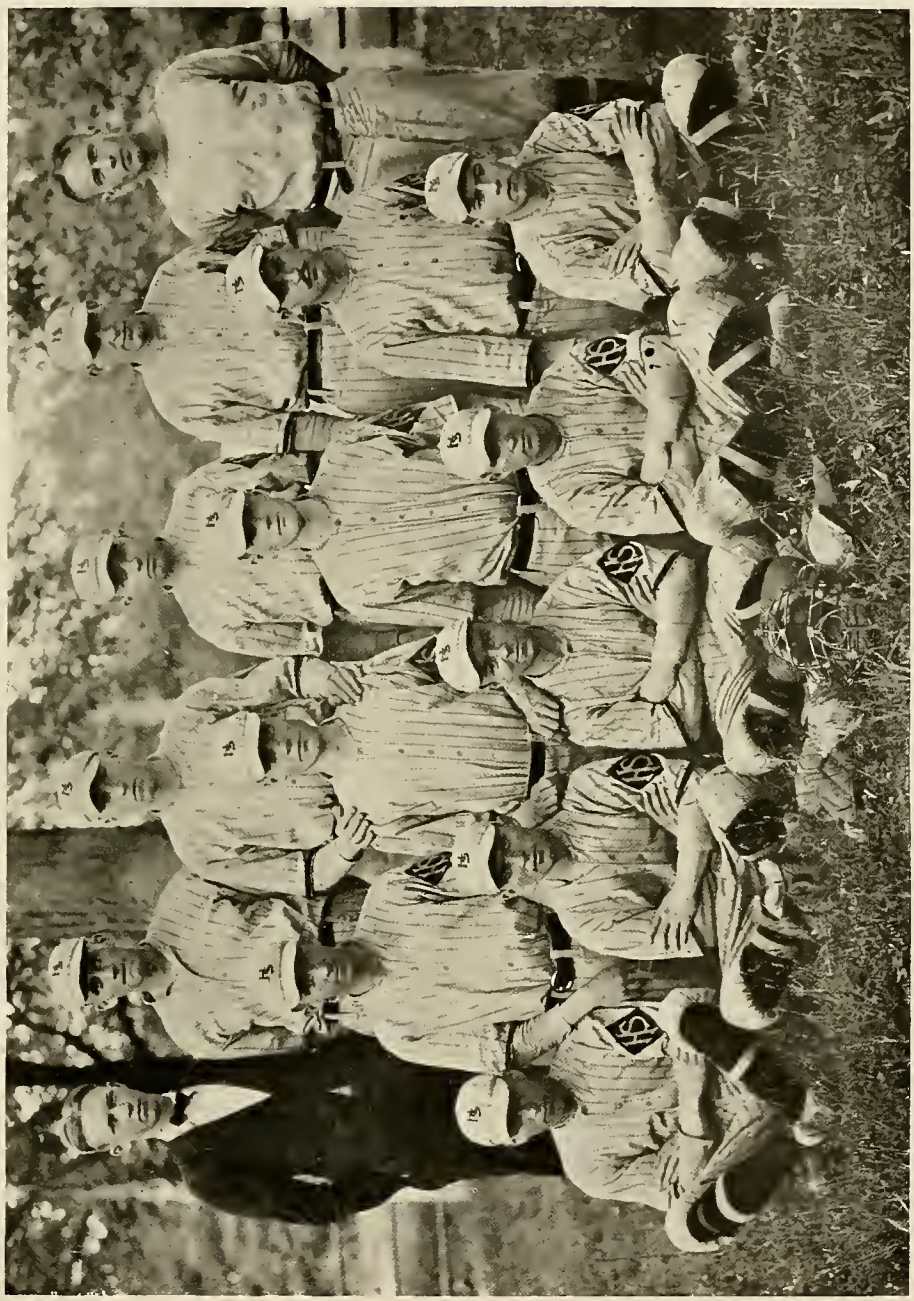

COACH Roundy's call for candidates for the Varsity nine produced a gratifying number of likely looking veterans and recruits.

The letter men were: Captain Aylor, the quick-thinking, straight-throwing, heavy-hitting catcher; who is undoubtedly one of the best college backstops in the State; Wat Lacy, the diminutive outfielder, whose speed on the bases is the despair of opposing catchers; Hugh Brenaman, a hard working pitcher of unusual ability; Kill Kilmon, reliable third sacker; Bill Day, the heady shortstop, whose skill in working pitchers for a walk is proverbial; Beau Hughes, the peerless guardian of center field; and Ben Smith, outfielder and all-round player.

In addition, we have Luke, Sanders, Montgomery, and Craddock of last year's scrubs, as well as an abundance of new material. So far, the most outstanding of the recruits are Lush, Attaya, Bittinger, and Southall.

With these men to work with, we cannot help but feel that Coach Roundy will turn out another successful team. Manager Hunt announces the following schedule:

March 28—Keysville, A. C., at Home.
April 4—Union Theological Seminary, at Home.
April 13-14—Virginia Polytechnic Institute, at Blacksburg.
April 15—Roanoke College, at Salem.

Chronicles

CHAPTER I

1. And it came to pass, in the second year of the reign of King Prexy of the Green Eye Shade, that the clarion sounded from the mountain; and the tribe heard and was glad and rejoiced in itself with exceeding great joy.

2. And, lo, there was a great congregation of the elders and they whose countenance had shone aforetime in the congregation of the people and among the seats of the rulers of the tribe, appeared once more within the border of the Kingdom.

3. Behold, the hills bowed themselves and brought forth and the valleys conceived and bore young; and lo, the whole Kingdom, even from Dan unto Beersheba was filled with tender green things, called, in the language of the tribe, even Freshmen, the lowest of things created, yea, of things heard of from the four corners of the earth.

4. And now, when the tribe was gathered together and collected before the temple of He of the Eye Shade, whose voice is like unto the thunder in the evening stillness and whose tongue is like unto scorpions applied to the backs of those who reply not.

5. Then it came to pass that one by one did the tribe, both the elders and the chief priests, the scribes and the captains, and all the people, even they who are known as Freshmen, yea, all the congregation of the people did enter and bow before Tulane, the Publican, whose hands are like unto grappling hooks and whose eye is like that of an eagle in that it remarketh the eagles afar off and gathers unto itself all of its kind.

6. And lo, they in whose pockets had jingled the golden sheckels, behold they in whose jeans had clinked the graven image of the king of birds, behold, they felt, and the talents of gold and of silver were no more with them, but journeyed far into the land of the forgotten, into the coffers of Tulane the Publican.

7. And now, much lightened and frightened by the quick flight of the eagles, the tribe did retire from the face of Tulane, the Greedy One, he whose fingers are like unto talons and whose voice is like the senseless and never ending wind whistling through the oaks that do grow and nod upon the heights of Bashan.

CHAPTER 2

1. And it came to pass that the captains stood up in the congregation of the people and did raise their voices to the heavens with the cry of war.

2. And the people lent their ear and heard and hearkened unto the voice of the captains.

3. And behold, there stood up mighty men from amongst the people, and there was a mighty clanging of arms, yea, even the noise of preparation for the battle.

4. And when the warriors stood forth, yea, even the mighty men of the Hamsidites, behold there arose a mighty shout from the people so that the heavens were rent and the distant hills did reverberate and the mountains afar off heard and were afraid.

4. And they that dwelt in the hill country gathered themselves together, saying: "What is this great thing that hath taken place in Hamsidney; and who is it that hath told them that they are strong?

5. Who are they that they should rise up against us? Let us take arms and smite them sorely that they may remember us forever and often recall us by the marks we shall inflict upon their hamneh bones.

7. Whereupon there was a mighty preparation and the hazy smoke of signal fires seen among the hills.

8. And they of the hill country gathered themselves together and laid in wait for the mighty men of Hamsidney and did smite them hip and thigh.

9. And the valley was full of confusion, yea of shouts of men and of struggling, the din whereof did shake the earth so that the hills did fly away and the mountains did hide their faces.

10. And lo, there was weeping in Hamsidney, yea, Alma Mater crying aloud for her children and finding them not, yea, finding them not!

11. For there fell of the mighty men of Hamsidney 136,000, and of the wounded were there many more.

12. And the remnant returned and, having rallied, prepared more earnestly, yea more zealously than aforetime for war.

SELAH

CHAPTER 3

1. And lo, there was a stir in Hamsidney and a mighty fluttering of hearts upon the Hill.

2. For a band of fair damsels did capture the country and held men, even strong men captive with their eyes.

3. And the tribe gazed in wonder,

4. For those were the days of See-more and Wear-less.

5. And the night was full of dancing and great rejoicing, for sweet were those days of captivity.

6. But all good things have an end, yea, even as the night endeth and the day breaketh, so also doth the day ever end in nightfall.

7. And the fair captors departed, conquerors still.

CHAPTER 4

1. And lo, and behold the eagle of war did scream, yea even flapped her wings and the mighty men of the tribe did take arms and go out into the darkness.

2. And they did come upon the camp of the Indians near the seaside,

3. And when it was come day, they did raise a mighty shout and a mighty clashing of arms, so that the sea heard and trembled in its depths, and the Indians heard and did wake with a start from their deep dreams of victory

4. And they did fall upon them yet but half awake.

5. And the waves of the sea shone red with blood and the sands thereof were stained therewith,

6. And the contest waxed hot and the sun rose and was near unto setting.

7. And the Hamsidites raised a shout and smote the Indians so that they fled and the war was finished in that battle.

8. And unto the victors were the spoils even vessels of silver and of gold, marked "Championship."

9. And the Hamsidites raised their voices and with one accord did shout, "Roundy, Coach Roundy."

10. For he was a mighty leader;

11. And there fell of the Hamsidites 7,000, but of the Indians 14,000.

SELAH

CHAPTER 5

1. And lo there was danger in the air, yea even a premonition of things not yet seen.

2. And some of the brethren did bow down, on account thereof, thrice daily before their household gods, whether they were Math. or Chemistry and did offer thrice daily, libations of oil and soda pop to the Lares and Penates, whether they were Latin or Greek.

3. But some of the brethren did mock and did laugh at them, saying, 'Why call ye on gods that have no ears, and on lips that speak not?"

4. But soon was their iniquity visited upon their own heads, for things unseen did become real and warnings afore uttered judged the brethren, and a plague was visited upon the tribe, even exams.

5. And whoever had not bowed thrice unto his household gods, him did they who sit on high, even He of the Green Eye Shade and them that aid Him in council, did cut them off from the roll of the names of the Hamsidites,

6. But Tulane kept their sheckels.

SELAH

CHAPTER 6

1. Behold, when the feast called Christmas was past, there came a man to Hamsidney,

2. Who called himself Bryan.

3. But he was a spy; and, moreover, he did have an ivory dome.

4. And that ivory dome, lo, it was hollow.

5. And when he of the hollow dome did speak, the brethren did know him for what he was and he departed.

6. And it was whispered in the ear of the tribe that King Prexie of the Green Eye Shade had called him to spy upon the people.

7. And the people were exceeding wroth and did assemble and meet together in the tabernacle, even in the Holy of Holies and did cry with one voice, "Traitor."

8. And He of the Green Eye Shade was silent.

9. And at length he did come and say, "In your wrath, ye do accuse me falsely.

10. "For though I had him here, I had him not to spy on you, but on certain wicked men not of our tribe.

11. The tribe heard and hearkened unto the words of the King and held their peace.

12. And Peace reigned again in the land.

SELAH

CHAPTER 7.

1. Wonder of wonders, it came to pass that Squirts the Silver Tongue, he that was king before the Shaded One, he that now teacheth the Babble of Barbarians unto the Hamsidites, did gird up his loins and get him into a far country, even into Sheba.

2. And lo, there he did take unto himself a wife, even the Queen of that land.

3. Who hath heard of such wonders? The sun? No! Nor yet the stars nor the uttermost parts of the universe, until now!

SELAH

CHAPTER 8

1. And lo, the time drew nigh that the tribe should assemble and meet together, and that the elders, arrayed in robes of state, be spoken to and admonished and advised and blessed and bidden to depart and bear forever in their hearts the love of the tribe. So, midst much rejoicing mingled with sadness, they gathered up their household gods and depart forever from amongst the congregation of the people.

2. But it is ever thus with mortals.

3. And they that were senators became elders in their stead.

4. And they that were knights became senators.

5. And they that were freshmen became knights.

6. And the damselles returned, and there was much joy, much merry making.

7. Then each man girded up his loins and departed into a far the time.

Statistics

The "Kaleidoscope" elections for 1921 were the most hotly contested to be held during the past eight years. The political methods used are unknown, but the existence of carefully built rival machines is evident from the results.

Professors Winston and Johnson tied for Most Popular Professor; with the rest of the faculty closely bunched for second place. Cary Adams beat out Hugh Brenaman for Most Popular Student by a small majority. There is a dark rumor of political trading attached to this result, based primarily on the fact that Hugh beat Cary for Best All Round Man by practically the same margin.

Ben Smith, Britt Brittain, and Beau Hughes walked away with the titles of Best Football Player, Best Basketball Player, and Best Baseball Player, respectively. Ben Smith was also voted Best All Around Athlete.

Hunt and Tayloe staged a close finish for the Biggest Live Wire, Harry winning by a length.

Scott was elected Biggest Ladies' Man over Pep Gillespie by one vote. Pep claims that they had agreed to vote for each other and that Scott voted for himself.

Best Musician and Best Singer were won by Frank and Billy Fuqua respectively; Holladay and Cook running a close second.

Love beat Deacon Hundley for Biggest Eater. This was Deacon's first defeat during his college career. Love says that his victory was entirely due to his ability to eat with both hands at once, and not to political trickery. The Hundley Managers deny this.

Page Morton was elected Biggest Woman Hater for the second time. A. G. Williams, John Lacy, Tom Gilmer and M. I. Williams were among the also rans.

Love was also successful in his campaign for freshest freshman, with Attaya and Randall Johnson close behind. Moody, by well organized propaganda, gained a plurality over Tayloe and Cook for the titles of Best Writer, Best Debater and Best Orator. Doc and Norman attempted to make a last minute trade, but were defeated by the vigilance of the Moody organization.

Husky Brown nosed out a victory in the race for Greenest Freshman, although closely pressed by the rest of the Freshman class.

Most Studious was a triangular tie between M. I. Williams, A. G. Williams, and Henry Bittinger.

Bunn Hagan, after a hot fight, was elected the Most Handsome Student. He was loyally supported by Second Passage.

Biggest Bull Artist was a walk away for Hagan.

Pep Gillespie beat Shad Watkins for Best Dancer.

Henry Holladay was elected the Best Tennis Player.

The Church Roll Call showed that Hampden-Sidney students are Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Baptists, Methodists, Mohammedans, Romanists, Holy Rollers, and Jumping Jesuits in order.

The average age is twenty years.
